I have a simple jquery webpage which is about to get a new design, this webpage is a dynamic page where all of the content is been generated by a js script. After doing some research I found out that if I add some script at the bottom of my page it won't be a problem, so if I add some script that I know that won't run (like fancybox or wordpress admin or whatever) it won't be running? If this is true, can I remove all "javascript" tags from the body or at least form and img tags so that this script won't run. A: All javascript tags must be in the head section of the document or they will not be read.

The prognostic value of duration of atrial fibrillation (AF) in predicting outcomes remains controversial. We performed a systematic review and meta-analysis of published studies to synthesize the effect of AF duration on the outcome of AF patients. We performed a systematic search of PubMed/MEDLINE, EMBASE, and the Cochrane library to identify prospective, observational studies that evaluated the association of AF duration with stroke, cardiac/vascular events, all-cause mortality, risk of bleeding, and thromboembolic events in patients with nonvalvular AF (NVAf) during follow-up. We also examined the potential sources of heterogeneity in study findings by performing subgroup and sensitivity analyses. The effect sizes of AF duration on outcomes were pooled by calculating hazard ratios (HRs) for each outcome using a random-effects model. A total of 27 publications with 128,351 subjects were included. AF duration was associated with increased risk of all-cause mortality (HR, 1.22; 95% confidence interval [CI], 1.16-1.28; P
